VOLUNTEERING

- Sometimes, the coexistence in schools is altered by the behavior of students who hinder the classes or even go so far as to verbally or physically assault their classmates or teachers.

- One of the measures that is applied in these cases is the expulsion of the student during a period of time. This measure does not really solve the problem and does not offer the student the possibility of rehabilitation.

VOLUNTEERING

- During this course we have launched a program to transmit these conflicting students a series of values and show them social realities that they do not know directly. We also offer the opportunity to feel useful to people who often have a very low self-esteem due to their continued school failure.

VOLUNTEERING

- The activity consists of carrying out volunteer work in two centers close to the school: a social lunchroom for people without resources and a residence for Alzheimer's patients where attention programs are carried out to improve their quality of life.

VOLUNTEERING

- With our European colleagues and their students, we will visit both facilities and see what kind of work our volunteers perform on them. This experience can be carried out in other countries by contacting organizations in their environment.

VOLUNTEERING

- We think that students can get benefits from this activity by improving their behavior, empathizing with people with problems and reinforcing their self-esteem by helping people in need.
