

Story competition

At the end of a period of writing practice the students write short stories and present them to the class. Normally it is on a special field (e.g. “my future life”) and the students give a feedback with green and red cards, showing whether they liked it or not. Students like it very much because they can show their creativity and normally the feedback is positive as you can see above. Many green and only two red cards.

